

Living (and working) in the Netherlands for EU citizens

What is the aim of this publication? Do you want to live (and work) in the Netherlands? In most cases, EU citizens do not need a residence document or work permit.

You can read about the following in this publication:

- whether you will need a residence document or work permit;
- if so, how you can apply for a residence document;
- where you can get more information.

Citizen of an EU/EER country or Switzerland

If you have a nationality of a country that belongs to the European Union (EU), the European Economic Area (EEA) or Switzerland, no residence permit is needed for you to live in the Netherlands. Your passport (or ID card) of the country, of which you hold the nationality, is evidence enough that you are permitted to stay in the Netherlands and to work here. You are not required to report to the IND (Immigration and Naturalisation Service) and also you do not apply to the IND for a proof of lawful residence. Your employer does not need to apply for a work permit for you if you want to work in the Netherlands.

Citizen Service Number

Are you planning to stay for longer than four months in the Netherlands? Then you will need to register with your local municipal personal records database. You can do this by going to the town hall in the municipality where you live. You will then be issued with a Citizen Service Number.

Your employer will be able to organise various different matters with this number, for example your registration with the Tax and Customs Administration. Your General Practitioner, hospitals and pharmacist may also ask you for your Citizen Service Number. For further information look at the website of the municipality where you live or via www.burgerservicenummer.nl.

Are you planning to stay for less than four months in the Netherlands? Then you are not required to register with your local municipality. However, if you would still like to be issued with a Citizen Service Number, then you can register with one of the municipalities which has a desk for non-residents. For further information, go to www.rijksoverheid.nl/onderwerpen/privacy-en-persoonsgegevens. You can also call the government information service on telephone number 1400.

Family members

Are you a family member or relative of a person who has the nationality of one of the EU or EEA countries or Switzerland, but you yourself have a different nationality? Then you will need to apply to the IND for a residence document. To do so, you can use the application form 'Application for Verification against EU Law (certificate of lawful residence)'. In this case, the person with whom you apply your stay (the person with the nationality of one of the EU or EEA countries or Switzerland), has to register with the IND. To do so, you can use the form 'Registration for citizens of the Union. In certain cases you can also use the application form 'Application for Verification against EU Law (certificate of lawful residence)' if you are a family member or relative of a Dutch citizen who has lived together with you in an EU/EEA country or Switzerland. Read further under: Applying for a residence document.

Long term residence: five years or longer in the Netherlands

If you stay in the Netherlands rightfully for five years or longer continuously, then you can apply for the residence document 'Permanent residence for nationals of the Union'. This also applies if you are a family member of a person who has the nationality of one of the EU/EEA countries or Switzerland, but you yourself have a different nationality. In order to apply for this residence document you can use the application form 'Application for a Permanent Residence Document for Nationals of the Union and their Family Members'. The other conditions applying to this residence document are also included with the application form. Read further under: Applying for a residence document.
